BRIEF CURRICULUM VITAE: PROFESSOR DAVID HEALD

David Heald is Professor of Public Sector Accounting at the Adam Smith Business School, University of Glasgow. His main research interests are: public expenditure; public sector accounting and public audit, particularly central government; the financing of decentralised government; and the financing of public infrastructure. Recent research has concerned the internationalisation of public sector accounting, accounting for government guarantees, and the governance of UK public bodies. He became a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences (FACSS) in October 2014 and of the Royal Society of Edinburgh in May 2016.

Born in 1947 and educated at Nunthorpe Grammar School, York, he took a BA in Economics at the University of Leicester and then qualified as a Chartered Management Accountant while working at Raleigh Industries and British Steel. He became a lecturer in economics at Glasgow College of Technology (1972-78), obtaining his further education teaching qualification at Jordanhill College, Glasgow. He taught at the University of Glasgow (1978-90), briefly in the Department of Social and Economic Research and then in the Department of Management Studies.

At the University of Glasgow he teaches, inter alia, public sector accounting to undergraduate Honours and public sector financial management on postgraduate degrees. Previously, he held Chairs at the University of Aberdeen over two discrete time periods. From April 1990 to August 2003 he was Professor of Accountancy, a post to which he returned in the Business School in August 2007. From September 2003 until October 2007 he was Professor of Financial Management at the University of Sheffield Management School, where he completed his three-year term as Head of the Accounting & Financial Management Division in September 2006. From September 2005 to October 2007 he was Associate Dean of the Management School, with special responsibility for RAE 2008. At Sheffield, he taught auditing, management accounting and public sector accounting, and also supervised doctoral work. High profile journal outlets for his research include Abacus, Accounting & Business Research, Accounting, Auditing & Accountability Journal, Economic Journal, Financial Accountability & Management, Fiscal Studies, International Review of Administrative Studies, Management Accounting Review, Political Studies, Public Administration, Public Money & Management and Regional Studies. He co-edited the landmark 'Transparency: The Key to Better Governance?' (Proceedings of the British Academy 135, OUP, 2006) with Christopher Hood (Gladstone Professor of Government, All Souls College, Oxford). Later, he published 'When the Party's Over: The Politics of Fiscal Squeeze in Perspective', Proceedings of the British Academy 197, OUP, 2014), with Christopher Hood and Rozana Himaz (Oxford Brookes).

His research has been funded, inter alia, by: the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants; the British Academy; Chief Scientist Office of the (then) Scottish Office Department of Health; the Economic and Social Research Council; HM Treasury; the Leverhulme Trust; the Ministry of Defence; the Northern Ireland Economic Council; the Nuffield Foundation; the Royal Society of Edinburgh; and the Scottish Foundation for Economic Research.

From 1989 to 2010 he was specialist adviser on public expenditure and government accounting to the Treasury Committee of the House of Commons, having earlier worked for this Committee's predecessor on the financing of nationalised industries (1981). In that capacity, he was heavily involved in inquiries into Estimates reform, Resource Accounting and Budgeting, and the Private Finance Initiative. From 2003 to 2010 he was a member of the Technical Advisory Group of the Audit Commission. He was has a member of the Research Advisory Board of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales from 2003-09. For a five-year term beginning 1 August 2004 and ending on 31 July 2009, he was a member of the Financial Reporting Advisory Board which advises HM Treasury on the application of commercial accounting standards to governmental bodies.

He was also specialist adviser on public expenditure to the Scottish Affairs Committee (1980; 1982-83; 1993-96). He was a public witness at Procedure Committee and Treasury Committee evidence sessions and assisted the Health Committee in private session with revisions to the form of the Department of Health's Estimates; and presented at a private seminar in January 2009 held for the House of Lords Select Committee on the Barnett Formula. He was a member of the NHS Executive's Market Forces Factor Sub-Group (1997) and of its NHS Accounting Review Group (1999). He was a member of the Financial Issues Advisory Group, which proposed financial procedures for the Scottish Parliament (1998). From July 2002 to July 2008 he acted as specialist adviser to the Public Accounts Commission of the House of Commons on the Corporate Plan and Supply Estimates of the National Audit Office.

He has consulted for many organisations, both in the United Kingdom and overseas: Audit Scotland (Schools' PFI Expert Group, 2001-02); Convention of Scottish Local Authorities (public expenditure framework of local government finance, 1981-82); Electricity Consumers' Council (investment and pricing policies, 1981-89); National Audit Office (sponsoring arrangements for nationalised industries, 1984-85; and value-for-money strategy in Scotland, 1996-97); Asian Development Bank (academic organiser of conference on the relevance of privatisation to six member countries, 1984-85); Overseas Development Administration (privatisation in Sri Lanka, 1986-87); National Association of Health Authorities (RAWP funding formula, 1986); Australian Council of Trade Unions (public sector reform and privatisation, 1986); United Nations Development Programme (privatisation in Pakistan, 1989); World Bank (review of privatisation experience in monopolistic sectors, 1990); the European Commission (communication under the 1980 transparency Directive, 1991; cross subsidies in public utilities, 1992-94; and employment-related public expenditure in Eastern Europe, 1992-93); and the French Government's Commissariat Général du Plan (utility regulation, 1993-94).

D RESEARCH AND SCHOLARSHIP

(1) Personal Research and Writing:

Public expenditure: This has been a research specialism throughout my academic career, in part stimulated by my role as specialist adviser to the Treasury Committee (1989-2010) and departmental select committees. Recent projects were on fiscal squeeze (with Professor Christopher Hood, Oxford and Rozana Himaz, Oxford Brookes), and the architecture, governance and substance of UK public audit (funded by the Leverhulme Trust). ESRC funding is currently held on Brexit, with the focus being on the UK divorce bill, the European Union's Multi-annual Financial Framework, and the impact on the budgets of the UK Devolved Administrations.

Government accounting reform: This became an interest in the early 1990s, initially stimulated by teaching commitments, then by Treasury Committee involvement in the Resource Accounting and Budgeting project (1994-2002), an ESRC grant on capital charging, and by my former role as specialist adviser to The Public Accounts Commission.

Accounting for large-scale infrastructure: This research evolved out of an ESRC grant (sub-contractor to Professor Richard Rose of the Centre for the Study of Public Policy, then at the University of Strathclyde), and continued with an ESRC Local Governance programme project (infrastructure accounting and financing), and, with regard to accounting for the Private Finance Initiative, was central to my membership of FRAB.

Financing decentralised government: This has been a research specialism throughout my academic career and I have been an influential participant, analyst and commentator on it, having been most recently funded by the ESRC Devolution and Constitutional Change Research Programme [L219252017 - Outstanding] and the Northern Ireland Economic Council.

The governance of public bodies: This is a relatively new stream of work, initially funded by a British Academy small grant and undertaken jointly with Dr David Steel (University of Aberdeen).

(2) Research Leadership

I am the Head of the Accounting Research Cluster at the Adam Smith Business School, University of Glasgow.

As Head of Accounting & Financial Management in the Management School, University of Sheffield, I had responsibility for promoting research by members of the AFM Division. I played a wider School role in research, both as a member of the Research Committee and as the Associate Dean with special responsibility for RAE2008. When I was appointed to a personal chair at the University of Aberdeen in 1990, the Dean strongly emphasised my responsibilities to guide the academic development of my new colleagues, many of whom were recent entrants to the research community. I devoted much time to guiding and encouraging colleagues in the development of their own research projects and in the preparation of their first academic publications.

(3) University Management

At the Adam Smith Business School level, I am the REF 2021 and Impact Champions for Business and Management Studies, resulting in extensive interactions with the University Centre, College of Social Sciences, and colleagues across the Business School.

At Sheffield, my role was principally at Management School level. I was a member of the Management Team in my capacity as Associate Dean for RAE2008. In sessions 2003-04 and 2004-05, I was a member of the Strategy Group (responsible for implementing the University's strategic plans for the School) and the Executive Committee (responsible for day-to-day operations). Because of staff illness, I was Acting Chair of the Teaching Committee from June 2004 to January 2005, at a particularly busy period. I served a term (September 2003 to September 2006) as Head of the Accounting & Financial Management Division within the Management School. From 2004-05 to 2006-07, I was a member of the Faculty Board of the Faculty of Social Sciences. From August 2006 to October 2007, I was a member of the Finance Committee of the University of Sheffield.

During the period 1990-96, I carried extensive management responsibilities at the University of Aberdeen. I had managerial responsibility, delegated from the Head of the Department of Accountancy & Finance, for (i) the doctoral programme, and (ii) the stimulation of staff research and the acquisition of external funding. At Faculty level, I was a member of the Faculty Planning Committee and Chair of the Faculty Research Committee (co-ordinating the RAE1996 submissions). At University level, I was a member of the University Research Committee and of the University Library Committee.
